

Gail M. Norris

Gail Norris is the Director of the University Office of Technology Transfer at the University of Rochester and is a senior member of the University's Office of Counsel. She specializes in the area of intellectual property law and technology protection and transfer. She joined the University in August, 2005.

From 2000-2005, Ms. Norris was the General Counsel of the U.S. subsidiaries of Celltech plc, a biopharmaceutical company headquartered in the UK. In her role as General Counsel, Ms. Norris oversaw all legal matters related to the Company's North America operations including regulatory compliance, business transactions, intellectual property management and licensing and contracting.

From 1991-2000, Ms Norris was a partner with the law firm of Nixon Peabody in the Corporate Law Department, where she provided legal advice on a broad range of business matters including corporate formations, mergers and acquisitions, financing transactions and intellectual property licensing.